

Call for applications

The Women's Water Initiative helps women advance their career opportunities in the field of water resources development and management. Women's Water Initiative has been created at the initiative of DHI, a Danish research and consulting company in 2006 and is now managed by the Danish Water Forum. The Initiative seeks to provide programme participants with insight and inspiration that can help them advance into more senior management roles. The Initiative's career programme builds upon Danish expertise in:

- water and environmental management and its international applications
- organisational management in the water sector

The OSCE supports a short capacity development programme in Denmark dedicated particularly to female water professionals from Central Asia and Afghanistan. The programme will include a combination of formal training and "hands-on" interaction with managers in public authorities and in the water industry. The OSCE will cover all travel, accommodation and living costs. It is the intention that the Women's Water Initiative will maintain contact with the participants over time through a mentoring component. Women from Central Asia in (or on their way into) middle management positions in the water sector – in government, private sector or NGOs - are encouraged to apply.

The capacity development programme includes:

- short courses in career development and management in the water sector, and in water governance, water resources, and environmental technologies
- meetings with and visits to Danish organisations in the field of water
- a one-day visit to a Danish utility or similar organisation to learn about water management and organisational development
- a subsequent mentoring component

A senior Danish manager will serve as a mentor for each candidate. This mentoring will continue for at least one year after the programme in Denmark. Candidates must fully commit themselves to participating in this component of the programme.

A Diploma will be issued by the Governing Board of the Initiative at the end of the visit to Denmark.

The present Call comprises:
